“The Uber driver turned over all the video from inside the vehicle. This was looked at by the investigation. They found nothing of substance or anything about Nancy Guthrie in the vehicle, anything she said, her demeanour, nothing was mentioned,” he said.

“They interviewed the Uber driver at length. And again, there was nothing to report. It was just a regular pick up and drop off. Remember, Guthrie only took the Uber, leaving her house and going to Annie [Guthrie] and Tommaso [Cioni],” he added.

Officials confirmed that the footage showed no unusual behaviour, suggesting the ride was routine and uneventful.

CCTV Footage and Digital Evidence Under Review

As the investigation progresses, authorities are now analysing additional surveillance footage from cameras installed near Guthrie’s residence. The goal is to reconstruct her movements after she returned home and identify any suspicious activity in the area.

Both the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Pima County Sheriff’s Department are jointly handling the case. Officials are also reviewing digital records and other forms of evidence collected over the past several weeks.
